FLOURING MILL.

Could be Operated Here Successfully.

Would Encourage the Cultivation of Wheat.

The subject of a flouring mill for Harboursville, might, upon the spur of the moment seem ridiculous to those who know that there is only a very small amount of wheat raised in Knox county, but we believe that a flouring mill could be made a success here for the following reasons:

The Cumberland river would afford ample power for operating the mill for at least six months and perhaps nine months out of the year. The remainder of the time the plant could be operated with natural gas or with coal which is very cheap fuel in this county, so that the cost of operating would be greatly lessened beyond what the millers in the wheat growing section of the State have to pay.

All the flour that is consumed in this section is shipped here from the mills elsewhere. Why, then, would it not be as cheap to ship the grain here in car lots and manufacture the flour and sell it here, besides all the bran, mill feed, etc., would find a ready market here, so that there would be nothing lost.

Again, if there was a flouring mill in our midst our farmers would begin to raise wheat here to supply the mill and thus encourage the industry of farming, and from what we have seen of this country we believe that from five to twenty-five bushels per acre could be raised on most any of our farming lands.

Who will undertake the proposition and who will lend a helping hand and thus build up our city and county as well?

There is a good opening for the right person if they will make the proper effort.

TO COLOR ELECTRIC GLOBES.—A little shellac, and thin it down with alcohol—very thin, so that it will run evenly. Now dip into an ordinary glass globe, which should then be hung up by a string to dry. This gives an almost perfect imitation of frosted glass, and a beautiful white light, much better for the eyes than an ordinary clear-glass globe. If a colored light is desired—green, red or blue—get a package of egg dye of the desired color. This dye should be dissolved in wood alcohol and mixed with the shellac. Any desired tint can be secured if it is remembered that the more dye and the less shellac used the deeper will be the tone. These colors, when so applied, are practically permanent; but in case it is desired to have the globes clear, or to change the color, the dye and shellac may be readily removed with wood alcohol.

Tit For Tat.

A story is told of a West country bishop who rebuked the sporting parson for his hunting proclivities. "I hear you go fox-hunting a good deal," he observed one day. "You ought not to do this; there is plenty of work to be accomplished in the parish."

"But," protested the vicar, "fox-hunting is merely healthy exercise; besides I heard that you were at a ball the other night."

"In a sense that is so," replied the bishop, "but, truly speaking, I was three or four rooms away from the ballroom."

The vicar smiled and then retorted, "I am always three or four fields behind the fox, so what's the difference?"—Tit-Bits

HOME BAKERY

Would Prove Successful and Convenient Here.

What is the matter with Harboursville having a home bakery located in our town, one that could furnish us light bread, the kind that mother used to make, also do our cake baking and all such things.

We know that the woman folks would appreciate and enjoy such a useful and important addition to the business of our city and we believe we can get the baker Mr. John Hahn, of Cincinnati, was here a few days ago looking for a location, and was highly pleased with the prospects our city afforded but the great misfortune was, there is not a vacant place in the town where he could establish himself and set up a bakery.

Mr. Hahn would come at once if he could get a place to open.

Now, who will build a place where he could locate?

What Harboursville needs is more business houses, although they are going up as fast as possible of late, yet the demand exceeds the supply, and if the owners of vacant lots will only get busy and build some business houses and residences they will have no trouble in finding tenants to occupy them.

If this was done there is no question about Harboursville reaching the 5,000 mark set by the Advocate, by 1910, if everybody will lend a helping hand.

FAIRBANKS

For Secretary of State

Tip Comes From Washington That Indianian is Being Considered.

Washington, Dec. 14.—President-elect Taft, during his stay in Washington last week, made it plain that his Cabinet is very far from being completed and that the last blocks may not be in position until a few days before March 4. In Cabinet speculation a new name was added Sunday night—that of Vice-President Fairbanks. He is being considered by Mr. Taft for Secretary of State.

The story has its attractive features in that the Indianian is an able and an exceedingly careful man and one who could be depended upon to give an excellent account of his stewardship as Cabinet premier. Aside from his admitted qualifications the tender of office would be a recognition of the leader of the men who opposed Mr. Taft's nomination at Chicago.

Of course some of Mr. Taft's most enthusiastic original supporters, including the President, will not become hilarious over the mention of Mr. Fairbanks' name, but it is nevertheless true that he is one of three or four that President-elect is thinking of for Secretary of State, no matter whom he may finally decide upon.

Miss Hoskins Wins Suit.

In the suit of David Baird & Son, of Louisville, against Miss Sallie Hoskins, of this city, for $455 with interest for four years was decided Wednesday in the Knox Circuit Court in favor of Miss Hoskins.

Paris dancing masters met recently to discuss the bearing of the dictoire gown upon their art, and unanimously adopted this resolution: "WHEREAS, In every age and in all climes dancing steps were always invented to suit the style of costume, and whereas hitherto in the present day we have executed dances with long, gliding quick steps; therefore, on account of the sheath skirt, we decree the short, gliding quick steps; therefore, we decree that this year the dances will be conducted in condensed form to suit the sheath skirt."

James A. McBrayer, aged eighty years, one of the most widely known men in the State, died at his home three miles from Lawrenceburg, last Saturday. He was a member of the Filson Club, of Louisville, and in his seventy-fifth year he translated "Briggitta" from the German.

NECKTIES

Gov. Wilson's Hobby

They Dazzle the Eye and Illuminate Frankfort on Gloomy Days.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec.—Officials and clerks at the Statehouse and others who come into daily association with Gov. Wilson have just awakened to a realization that he has a penchant for neckties—and oh my! such neckties!

The Governor, it is said, purchases them by the half-dozen and "springs" them one by one as fancy or mood dictates. It is also whispered that Mrs. Wilson's tastes do not run in the direction of prismatic hues and daring color combinations for which the head of the household shows marked partiality, and upon more than one occasion she has urged a change in this direction, but the Governor, it is said, takes much pride in the detail of attire and is not easily persuaded from his hobby.

One of the cravats, which is the Executive's especial joy, is almost a perfect replica of the rainbow which brightens and cheers at the end of an April shower. Another would fit Mark Twain's old scheme produced by a tortoise shell cat having a fit in a platter of tomatoes. Still another—pardon the alliteration—might well be described as a poem of prismatic perfection.

Collectively the Governors ties are a wonderful assortment of colors and half-tones which surely must have taxed the skill and ingenuity of the dyer. Scotch plaids, enblématique of all the claus of the lands of "Bobby Burns," are in the lot, and the hues of some of the others range from the delicate pink of the sea shell to the blue of the robin's egg and the scarlet of the flamingo's wings. Interspersed in the lot may also be found some of the more subdued shades like the green of the frog or the gray of a misty morning, but these are almost as rare as male angels' tears.

Governor Wilson's arrival at the Statehouse each morning is now awaited with more than eager interest, for as likely as not, he will wear a neck creation which will make the day brighter and happier for all who catch a glimpse of it.

BUILDING NOTES.

James Lockhart is erecting a new residence near the L. & N. depot.

Lee Sealf is plastering his new barber shop and will be in it by Christmas.

Parker & Parker are pushing the brick work on their new store room at the corner of Knox and Walnut street.

The first and second floors of the new hotel are plastered and now taking on the finishing touches. The third floor will not be completed until Spring.

Miss Sallie Hoskins has the brick work up ready for the second floor joist on her new store-room adjoining the First National Bank.

The new pumping station of the Water Works Co., is rapidly nearing completion of the brick work, and will then be ready for the roof. They are also installing a new 32-horse power gas engine for pumping purposes. They already have a steam engine installed for an emergency.

BRADLEY'S

Share of the Patronage of Kentucky.

Washington, Dec. 15.—Frank H. Hitecock, chairman, of the Republican National Committee, is taking up the preliminary of tremendous task of determining the office distributing powers of Senator-elect Bradley, of Kentucky. Recently the chairman has been in conference with postmaster Fisher, of Paducah, the Republican members of the Kentucky delegation.

There are already signs that over seven 1 of the largest of offices and postoffices there will be differences and the national chairman is anxious to reach some agreement with the Senator. While it is not a matter of the near future the Louisville postoffice will furnish one of the principal points of difference. Postmaster Wood and is an old friend of Mr. Hitecock, and was originally appointed upon his recommendation. Senator Bradley is against Woods' retention. The Louisville collectorship will cause a fight.

Post-office squabbles promise to become numerous. The first is that over the Paris post-office, postmaster Earlywine is now in the city and called at the Post-office Department. He is a candidate for re-appointment, his time expiring next month. While he was formerly the private Secretary of Secretary Bradley, the Senator is now against him and is reported to have endorsed N. A. Moore, Earlywine's supporters believe he will win on the ground that Senator Bradley does not take office until March 4. Mr. Hitecock will decide the case shortly.—Courier-Journal

In testifying in the Parrish case Monday, C. C. Watkins, an Owensboro banker, stated that on over $75,000 in notes and other securities held by the defunct bank, not over ten per cent could be realized. Parrish withdrew from the clearing house because the Owensboro banks would not refuse to partially suspend payment during the panic. He tried to get back but failed.

Christmas Tree of the Baptist Church.

There will be a Christmas Tree at the Baptist Church, given by the teachers of the Sunday school, to the pupils of their classes on Christmas eve night. Everybody invited.

HENS WORK SHELL GAME.

With eggs at 35-cents a dozen, the prospect is for a 5-cent race. Retailers are buying eggs at 32-cents in case lots, without a guarantee of freshness. A little idleness with the hens and the trick is turned.

W. H. Harris and family, who left here some two or more years ago and have been living at Story, Ill., have returned and may locate here.

Beware of the Glass.

There's danger in the glass—beware lest it shatter. They who have drained it find, and too often early graves. It sparkles to allure, with its rich ruby light; there is no antidote or cure, only its course to flight. It changes men to brutes; makes women howl their heads; fills homes with anguish, wails, disputes, and tears. Then dash the glass away for at the last it bites like a serpent and stings like an arrow, and it is wise and sound to shatter the glass and escape contentions and wounds without a cause: but drink pure water day by day and walk God's footstep free.

BACK TO LIFE

Dr. Abbott See Resurrection.

Famous Preacher Tells Yale Students of Remarkable Incident at What he Thought was a Deathbed.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 16.—Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott in a sermon to Yale students in Woolsey Hall related an incident of apparent resurrection from death.

"Some years ago I was called to bedside of a dying parishioner of mine. I comforted the family, and as I knelt at the bedside of the woman she drew what was apparently her last breath. The doctor said that she was dead. But he drew forth an electric wire, attached it to a mechanism and then passed an instrument over the apparently dead woman's body. In a few moments what was lifeless took on animation, the eyelids opened, she presently saw those about, soon spoke to them and finally sat up in bed. That woman recovered, lived two years and died of another disease. Since I saw that resurrection from apparent death I can well believe those who are dead are not far away and that they can be summoned back to a greater life by that great master physician."

THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

Pleasant Evening Reveries.—A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.—Crude Thoughts from the Editorial Pen.

A hovel very is often more a home than a palace. If the spirit of congenial friendship links not the hearts of the inmates of a dwelling it is not home. If love reigns not there; if charity spreads not her downy mantle over all; if peace prevails not, if virtue rear not her beautiful children, and religion comes not in her white robe of gentleness to lay her hand in benediction on every head; the home is not complete.

More and more as we grow, we appreciate the finer traits that are in human nature. Men going out into life never forget the mother who stays at home, and who has presented to them a nature with a reason dominant with a high moral moral sense, with refined and sweet affections, with taste, with patience and gentleness, with self-sacrifice; and with disinterestedness. A man may go through all the world, he may run through every stage of belief and disbelief, but there will be one picture that he cannot efface. Living or dying, there will rise before him like a morning star the beauty of that remembered goodness which he called "mother."

There many happy homes, thank God, in every community, and when they exist there goes out from them a blessed influence, which can hardly be overestimated. "A real home with a mother in it," whose hospitable doors are ever open to those not so blessed, is a wonderful power for good. If the boys and girls are made welcome they will not be slow to tell it, and there will be no attraction in the sweet amenities of home which will draw them from other and less holy influences. It is not possible in this world so full of care and trouble to be always merry. It is quite possible to be always loving and kind. If the business cares of the father and the never-ending struggles of the mother with dirt and disorder, cooking, washing, ironing and mending, can not be banished, they can be wonderfully toned down by the loving sympathy and help which each member of the household can and should give to the other. A home where the golden rule is lived is the nearest possible approach to heaven. The day comes all too soon when the household is scattered—the boys and girls, alas! girl no longer—are gone to make homes for themselves; when some, perhaps are laid away from our sight, out of reach of kind words or helpful deeds. Happy are we if no sorrowful thoughts haunt us, of hasty words or unkind deeds, if only pleasant memories remain. We may, if our means allow, make our home beautiful and attractive, and it is well to do so. But without the true spirit of home, it will be a cheerless and desolate mockery—while the humblest cottage where love dwells and kindness reigns, may most beautifully exemplify the sweetness and blessedness of home.

THAT DREARY PARLOR.

We do wonder why people try so hard to make their houses ugly, inside and out. They spend, dollars, yes, lots of them, too—in filling their dwellings with what is neither useful nor ornamental, when a few cents and perhaps a little sense would have made them handsome. The best parlor, what misery sits enthroned within its forbidden door! When you make a visit you are invited within its sacred portals. The door creaks, as if protesting against the invasion. A clammy atmosphere envelopes you as you enter that makes you shudder and wonder if the house is haunted. You sit on a hair cloth chair and clutch frantically at the arms to keep from slipping off. The amblytypes of deceased uncles and cousins and aunts look down at you from their oval frames and scowl. The whatnot in the corner is covered with bric-a-brac intended to be ornamental, but which looks more like some play-house replete with broken dishes and empty bottles, and kept in the best room in memory of a child, dead years ago. You feel in your bones that there has been no one in that room for months before and that when you go out it will at once be sealed like a tomb and left to the care of the relatives on the walls. You long for a glimpse of the sunlight out of doors. If you could see a hat or a coat lying carelessly about to donate that you were still in the land of the living, it would be a relief. You wish you could find a cat in the room and step on its tail, or run a pin into the old aunt who looks down from the wall with a stony glare at least fifty years old, or kick the hair cloth chair right into the whatnot, or do anything to cause a commotion and appearance of life. And when, after a visit of half an hour, about as cheerful as a funeral, you leave the room, you feel as you had been in the presence of the dead. The best parlor, where sunlight and children, and laughter, and music and fun are excluded, should give place to something more cheerful and more fitting for Christmas homes.

MANAGING A WIFE.

A New York paper recently offered a prize for the best thought on "How to Manage a Wife." The following was awarded the prize: "Manage!" What is that? Does it mean to control? We manage a horse; we use our superior human intellect to control and guide his superior physical strength so as to obtain the best results. But a wife is not a horse. Where two persons are well married, the wife is superior to her husband in as many respects as he is superior to her in others. If happiness is to be the result of the union the first business is to manage himself so as to keep himself always his wife's best friend, always her tender lover, always her equal partner, always her superior protector. This will necessarily stimulate the wife to be always an admiring friend, always an affectionate sweetheart, always a thrifty housewife, always a confiding ward. And this will so react upon the husband that his love for his wife will grow so as to make it easy for the husband, with all his faults, to bear with the infirmities of his 'one and only' wife."

Old times are sweetest and old friends are best.

A sunny disposition is to chosen above great riches.

It is only when to-morrow's burden is added to the burden of today that we can bear.

"Say, ma?"
"Don't call me ma. Say mother. What is it?"

"What's a green old age?"
"When a man who is bald and wrinkled and tottering marries a young woman who wouldn't look at him a second time if he didn't have lot of money," the lady replied, casting a stealthy glance at her husband, who was busy reading the stock quotations. "It may be said that he has lived to a green old age!"—Chicago Record Herald.

"How said the critical Britisher, 'your streets are beastly muddy. I wonder, how, that your skies are so clear.'"

"That is on account of our sky-scrappers, Lord Reginald, we explained."

Make some far-away friend happy by sending them the Advocate for a Christmas present. It will make them feel happy and you too.

Five Years of Heart Trouble Cured by Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy

"Before I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I had been suffering from heart trouble for over five years. I had pains in my left side, and under my shoulder blade, could not sleep on the left side, and was so short of breath the least exertion would bring on the most distressing palpitation. I had scarcely taken a half bottle of the Heart Remedy before I could see a marked change in my condition. When I had taken six bottles I was cured."

MRS. C. C. GORKEY, Northfield, Va.

If there is fluttering or palpitation it is an indication of a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the heart. It is not necessarily diseased—just weak from over-work. The heart may be weak just the same as the eyes, stomach or other organs. You can make a weak heart strong by taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy. Get a bottle from your druggist, take it according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.
